My Name is Kali

Anna Farida and Felishia

That girl is here again.
What will she play
this time?

Look at her!
The water splashes everywhere.

She has her clothes and face wet all over.
She looks like laughing forever.

She also splashes the goats with water.
They run away from her.

She gives them some grass.
Will they follow her at last?

Owh ... Owh ...

Ouch!

She falls down the hill..

The goats run away.

She looks upset.

She's gets wet sitting in the shallow water.

What?! Now she's laughing.
What's she thinking about?

She sits to stop the water flow.
She's just like a giant!

Now, she piles up some stones.
It looks like she is building a dam on her own.
Oh dear, the dam crumbles down.

The water carries away the twigs and leaves smoothly.
They float back and forth.
She calls out cheerfully.
Where is she going now?

She picks up corn leaves.
Then she folds and weaves
the leaves together.
She turns them into boats.

She stops the water flow again.
The boats are on the sand.
Then ...

She stands up quickly.
The water hits the boats like a big wave.

She keeps playing and laughing.
Then, she hears her father and mother calling.

From afar I watch her.
She looks cheerful.
She loves playing in the water.

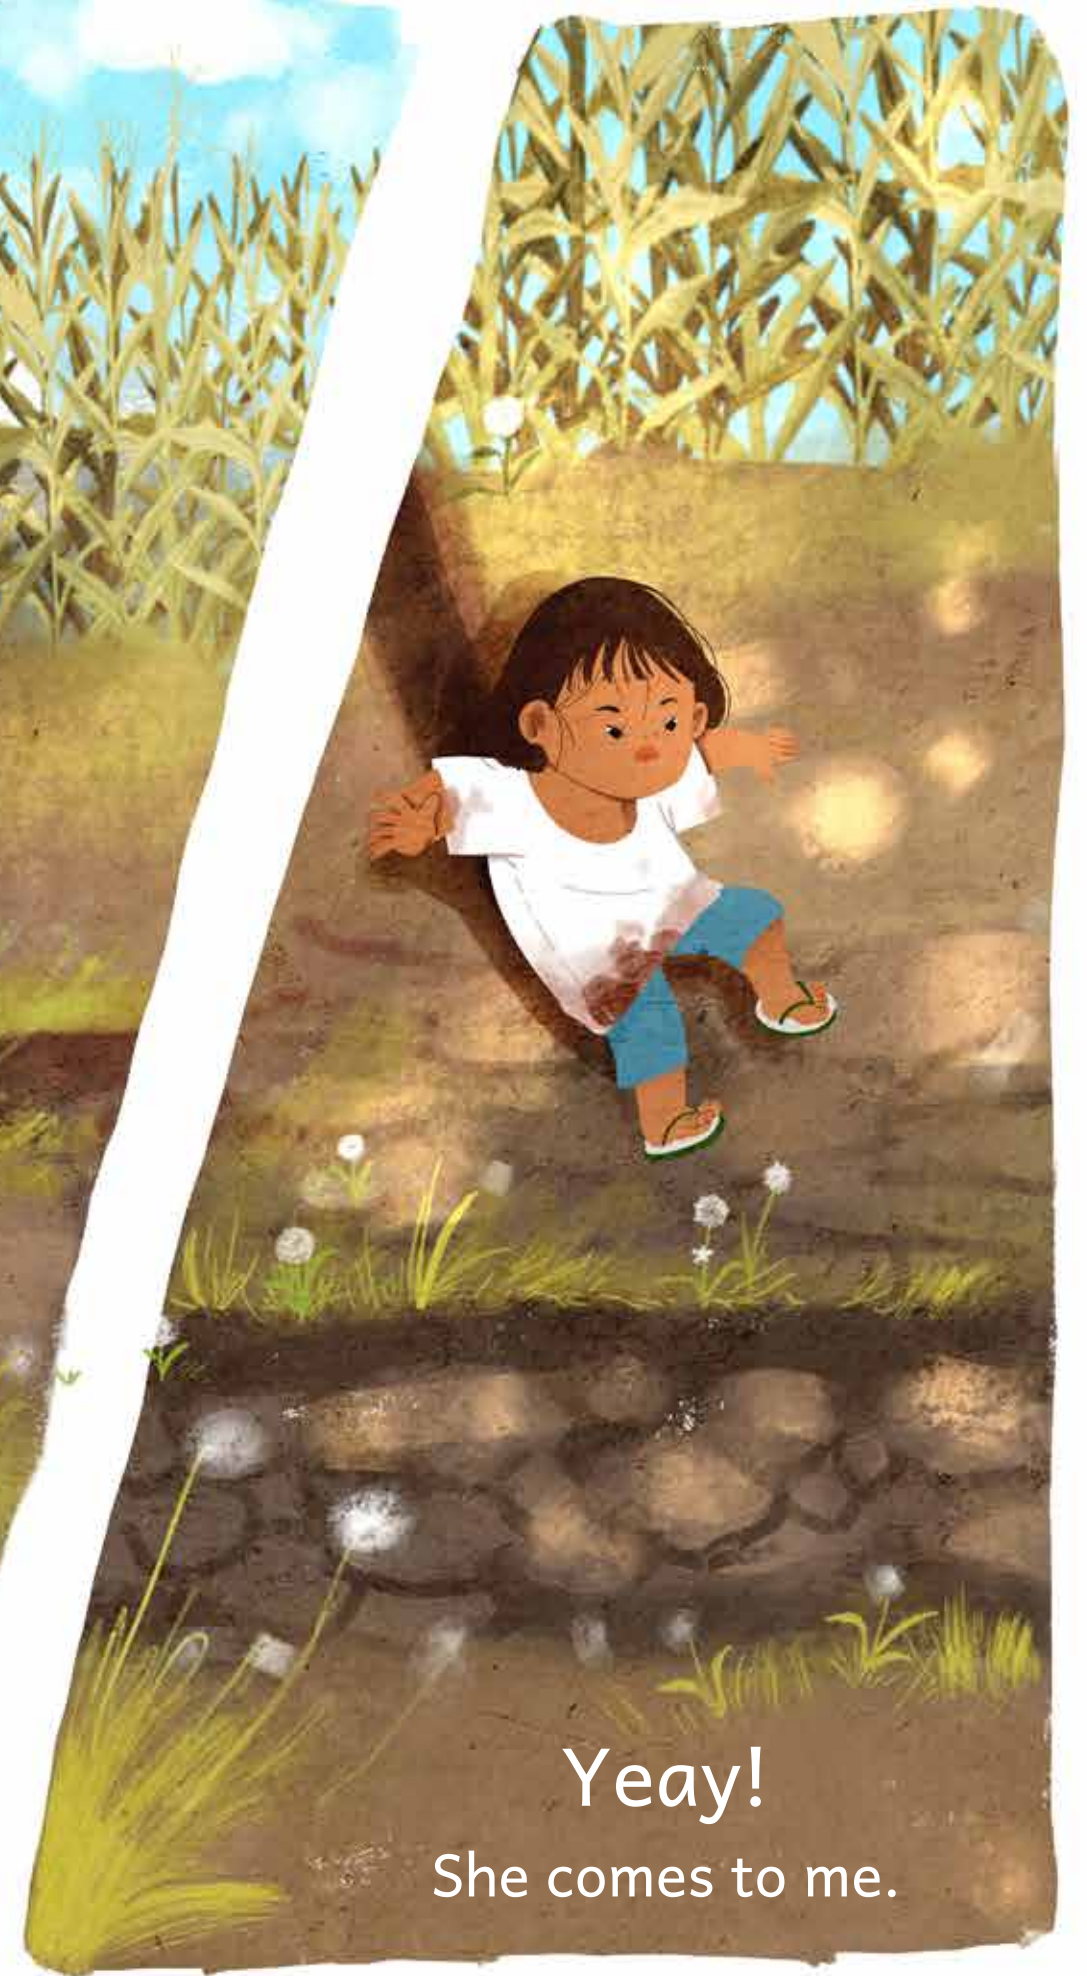

It has been a while.
I don't see her smile.
The cornfield is quiet.

The harvest time is coming!
 She is here again and looks happy.
 I am so happy with what I am seeing.

Yeay!
 She comes to me.

But, I have no water for her now.
She is so quiet.
I want to cheer her up.

Look at the sky!
Soon it will be a rainy day.

It is happening!
It is raining!
She and I are both happy.
By the way, my name is Kali.

A MESSAGE TO OUR READERS

Dearest readers!

Have you ever splashed in the water?
Now you know Kali.
By the way, the child in the story has Down Syndrome.
She is always happy and loves playing.
We hope you like the story.

Warm regards,

Anna and Felishia
